

ANTI-TRAFFICKING

This quarter, we achieved record-breaking impact with 1,732 intercepts in April! With a dramatic reduction in expenditure, we're moving closer to hitting our goal of $120 per intercept in a single month (currently at $157). To enhance our impact, we've implemented new monitoring strategies, expanded referral networks, and hired additional staff. Our partners in East Africa and South Asia, have hired spiritual care coordinators, providing vital resources for our teams and enabling us to share the gospel more effectively. This spiritual focus will be extended to all nations as funding is identified.

BOY SAFE FROM HUMAN SACRIFICE

Our team in Sierra Leone intercepted Foday, a 10-year-old boy being trafficked for potential human sacrifice. Foday was told he would receive a large sum of money after traveling to an unknown village, and he was instructed not to discuss his travel plans with his family. In this video, our project manager in Sierra Leone provides further details about the interception and sheds light on the abhorrent practice of human sacrifice.

STAFF SPOTLIGHT

Pete Langley recently joined LJL in the role of anti-trafficking impact engineer. His immediate focus is on re-establishing some dormant impact-multiplying processes in several countries. He is prioritizing the following projects: the case dispatcher (a tool to assist in the prioritization of cases during basic investigations), the police liaison process (a strategy to increase arrests by bridging the gap between transit monitoring and law enforcement), and the safe foreign employment process (a strategy that helps people use safe and trusted channels to migrate to another country for work, helping protect them from being trafficked).
